Apartheid as an official policy in South Africa was in operation from 1948 to 1994. For 43 of these 46 years, I experienced the system first hand as a White person, initially from a child's perspective and later leading to my involvement with liberal politics. I have many memories and experiences of these years and many anecdotes to share. The course will commence with the arrival of the peoples of South Africa, where they came from, why they were there and when they arrived. This is important to understand the makeup of what became known as Coloured, Bantu, Indian and Afrikaner and English whites. The course will progress with the development of the country and its British colonies and Boer republics leading to the formation of the Union of South Africa in 1910. Various racial policies during this time will be discussed. The main body of the course will focus on the apartheid years leading to the election of Nelson Mandela in 1994 and my experiences and insights during my life living there until my departure in late 1996.

Schubertlieder (songs composed by Franz Schubert) are some of the world's most-loved music. Franz Schubert was born in Vienna in 1797 and died there in 1828. He was a musical genius and a child prodigy. By the age of eleven, he could play the violin, piano, and organ. More prolific than The Beatles, in his short life he composed over 600 songs, as well as opera, ballet music, two Masses, nine symphonies, scores of piano pieces, and duets, trios, quartets, quintets, and octets for various instruments. Music seemed to flow from him and is still greatly loved two hundred years later. For many listeners, his songs are at the pinnacle of music. If you love Schubert's music you'll love to hear it again. If you're not familiar, come and listen to what makes it so exciting. Like me, you don't need any musical training, knowledge, talent, or skills - just functioning ears and a willingness to be enchanted.
